

[YEAR] RSVP Digital Event

[EVENT TITLE]

Chat Transcript

10:00:33 From Kaari Newman To Everyone(in Waiting Room): We're experiencing some technical difficulties at the moment. We'll admit everyone shortly. Thanks for your patience!

10:07:38 From Mary Grant To Everyone: LOL

10:41:47 From Fionnuala Dillane To Everyone: The recording will be uploaded on the RSVP Youtube channel and we'll publicise the link in our newsletter

10:44:01 From Mary Grant To Everyone: Feel free to add any questions to the chat!

10:46:12 From Matthew Stephens To Everyone: That was so practical and lucid. Thank you so much, Russell. I agree with Mary that the idea of the 'rule of three' is a great tip, especially. My question is, how fine are the margins in competitions like Curran? Assuming that most applications will be essentially complete and tick the relevant boxes, what makes one stand out over another?

10:47:34 From Atul Nair To Everyone: Thank you for your great presentation, Russell! While writing for a grant, how can one account for primary material that you may not know about till you have access to a certain database/archive (especially in the case of 19C periodicals)?

10:49:11 From Georgina Gale To Everyone: Thanks for a great presentation and advice! I wondered if the Society favours applications which specify more eco-friendly travel? I ask because I've applied for grants which, when provided with equally good applications, have stated that they opted for the one with more eco-friendly travel. Their advice has been to plan to use train/bus over plane/car, even if the budget and travel time is significantly higher.

10:49:40 From Matthew Stephens To Everyone: Thank you - that really does help.

10:53:24 From Fionnuala Dillane To Everyone: And you are so likely to be expert in the periodical no one else is looking at and doesn't realise how significant it is 10:57:15 From Atul Nair To Everyone: Thank you! It really does help.

10:59:19 From Antonija Primorac To Everyone: Thanks for all the tips and advice! In terms of cutting down on travel, would a subscription to a digitised newspaper base be eligible as part of the application?

10:59:52 From Georgina Gale To Everyone: Thanks for answering and glad to hear! I try to be eco-friendly, but am dreading planning travel to Vechta (Germany) via bus in February...

11:00:59 From Georgina Gale To Everyone: (Apologies if I was shouting into my earphones - very noisy at my end!)

11:01:59 From Rebekah Greene To Everyone: Thank you all for a wonderful session! I must run to another meeting, but I'm so excited and hopeful about my potential application this year!

11:02:21 From Kaari Newman To Everyone: To what extent do budgetary considerations factor into the final decision making? Just because the Society can fund up to $6k, does that mean your proposed project/travel *should* cost up to that amount or come close to it?

11:02:31 From Deepali Yadav To Everyone: Please explain how to list out funding budget in detail. What is exactly expected in writing the budget.

11:03:09 From Mary Grant To Everyone: Quick shout out: Tarini was the recipient of RSVP's 2023 Expanding the Field Prize!
